REAL CASE STORIES FROM REAL DETECTIVES

#21-07S:

Dances with Poles

Our story begins with a man named John, he was a tall, good-looking man in his 30's, single and a bit naïve. He had a good job, was financially secure, and had plenty of free time. This is why he began to frequent a nearby gentlemen's club. At first, it was just entertainment and a way to kill time. However, the more time he spent at the club the more he began to notice a particular dark-haired young woman whose body was as long and lean as the pole she was dancing with. Her name was June. In the beginning, they simply talked. They had many common interests and before long they started dating. At the time, June didn't have much to tie her down so when John asked her to move in with him she gladly accepted. John accepted her profession and even drove her to and from work on occasions, after all, she made great money. Though John stopped coming around to the club as much as he used to because he didn't want to see her interact with other men. In her line of work, it is common to work varying hours so Jane didn't always know exactly when she would be done with work, and would often be done at different times each night. As their relationship progressed it seemed to John that he had found his perfect partner. He was in love. Their relationship became comfortable and things were good for a long time.

LITTLE RED FLAGS

RED FLAGS OF PHONE SCAMS

SIGNS THE CALLS YOU'RE GETTING ARE ACTUALLY SCAMMERS!

- Unsolicited calls from people claiming to work for a government agency, public utility, or major tech firm, like Microsoft or Apple. These companies and institutions will rarely call you unless they have first communicated by other means or you have contacted them.
- Unsolicited calls from charity fundraisers, especially after disasters.
- Calls pitching products or services with terms that sound too good to be true. Common scam offers include free product trials, cash prizes, cheap travel packages, medical devices, pre-approved loans, debt reduction, and low-risk, high-return investments.
- An automated sales call from a company you have not authorized to contact you. That's an illegal robocall and almost certainly a scam. (Automated calls are permitted for some informational or non-commercial purposes — for example, from political campaigns or nonprofit groups like AARP.) [Source: AARP.org]

Until one day June came home in a different car, and a pattern emerged. Every 3-4 weeks June would come home in different cars, nice, but gently used. John inquired about the different cars and all June said was that she was tired of driving the same old thing every day and had decided to upgrade. One evening she came home with a car that was not as nice as that one she had previously been driving, this made him suspicious.

ENTER BLACKMAN DETECTIVE SERVICES - John had decided that he really wanted to know where the different cars were coming from and why she was "upgrading" so often. So he made an appointment with a BDS case manager. After obtaining schedules, photos, and a current car description, we assigned an investigator to his case. The first few times that our investigator surveyed June, she left work and drove directly to her and John's house. After about a week of surveillance, June left work at about 2 am and drove to a used car lot in the north Raleigh area and parked.

She was met at the entrance by a middle-aged man who she then followed inside. All the lights were then turned out except for an office in the back of the building. The lighted office had 8-foot tall windows with vertical blinds. The blinds didn't overlap as precisely as they presumably would have when they were new so there were slits that our investigator could see through. Once the investigator turned on the video camera it was like videoing a pornographic movie. So this is where June was receiving her new cars, and that was how she was paying for them. It seems that when June grew tired of driving the same old thing every day, that included John as well.

The short of it is, John was heartbroken and June moved in with the used car dealer and presumably gets to drive whatever she wants. John was able to find a different gentlemen's club to spend his time in, and everyone's lives went on.
